Parker and Merrill Prize Speaking Contests Are Announced

Vol. XXVIII. MIDDLEBURY COLLEGE, MIDDLEBURY, VT., MAY 13, 1931 No. 27

FIVE DEPARTMENTS WILL UNITE IN NEW COURSE NEXT YEAR

Rise and Tendencies of Man Both Social and Mental to Be Studied.

OPEN TO JUNIORS AND SENIORS ONLY

Profs. Harrington, Longwell, Kingsley, Kline, and White to Lecture.

Five departments of Middlebury College will unite in giving an entirely new course to be called "The Rise of Man and His Tendencies", according to a recent announcement.

This correlation course which will be given for the first time next fall will trace the origin of man, his development and tendencies. It will include the evolution of man from the lower animals, his physical qualities, the rise of his mentality, the development of civilization, the natural tendencies and impulses of man, the physical and social forces internal and external which tend to modify him, an enumeration of his accomplishments in the past, and problems of the future. The purpose of the course is to ally all the different phases in the development of mankind in one comprehensive inter-departmental course.

Although this course is an innovation at Middlebury, it is similar to inter-departmental courses given in many leading universities today. The favor with which similar courses have been received elsewhere, and the growing demand for such a one at Middlebury assure its success.

"The Rise of Man and His Tendencies" will be listed as a sociology course, but will be handled by the heads of five different departments. The men who will participate in this course are Professors Longwell, White, Kline, Kingsley, and Harrington of the departments of biology, ancient history, history, sociology, and philosophy. Juniors and seniors may take the course by permission.

FERD MANN ELECTED TO HEAD PRESS CLUB

New Board Will Put Into Effect Ideas Received at Recent Conference.

Ferd. Mann '32, was recently elected editor of the Press club for the year 1931-32. The offices of managing editor, associate editor and business manager will be filled by Philip Carpenter '33, Elsa Smith '32, and Carol McNeely '33.

The Press club will continue under the supervision of W. Storrs Lee, editor of college publications.

The new board plans to adopt several ideas received at the New England press board conference held at Bowdoin college, Brunswick, Maine, May 1 and 2. The conference was attended by delegates from Bowdoin, Colby, Middlebury, Mt. Holyoke, Pembroke, Smith and Wellesley. The program consisted of lectures and discussions led by the delegates and members of the staffs of several New England newspapers. The work of Middlebury's Press club was discussed by Mr. Lee in a round table talk.

Since its organization last spring, the Press club has been actively engaged in handling various phases of college publicity. Reports of all games held in Middlebury are sent to the newspapers of New England by a Press club representative, while articles on the activities of students are also written for home newspapers of the students concerned.

Boardman Peace Prize Essays are Due May 29

Announcement has been made by Prof. Vernon C. Harrington, who will have charge of the Deacon Boardman peace prize essays again this year, that all essays must be in his hands not later than Friday, May 29. Each person participating in the contest is asked to sign his work with a pseudonym and to enclose his real name in an envelope which will accompany the essay.

The Deacon Boardman peace prize was established in memory of Samuel Ward Boardman. An award of $30 is offered annually to the member of the junior class submitting the best essay in favor of peace, and in opposition to war as a method for settling international differences. It must be creditable as a literary composition and consist of at least 2,000 words.

BLUE KEY ENFORCES FROSH RULES FOR '35

Honorary Society Elects Officers for Coming Year and Installs New Members.

The Blue Key society will have full control over next year's freshman, it was decided at the meeting of this organization in Hepburn social hall on Tuesday evening, May 5. At this time, new officers were elected and the recently selected pledges were installed.

The decision to assume the responsibility of enforcing freshman regulations was made after careful discussion. It was felt that the student council, which formerly performed this office, did not organize soon enough, so that the responsibility was thrown upon one man, the president of the undergraduate asociation. It is expected that the student council will formally surrender its power to the Key in the near future. Informal consent to the change has already been given.

Since the Key is to have complete supervision over the class of '35, members of the society will be at Middlebury during freshman week. They will assist the administration in the work of orienting the new students.

Officers for the coming year who were selected at this time were: A. Kirkland Sloper '32, president; Edward Markowski '32, vice-president; George E. Yeomans '33, secretary-treasurer, and William E. Horr '32, chairman of the entertainment committee.

New members who were installed were: E. Parker Calvert '31, Albert V. Hanson '31, Charles A. Kennedy '31, Kenneth C. Parker '31, Burton W. Perrin '31, Raymond F. Ashdown '32, William E. Horr '32, Reamer Kline '32, Urho A. Makela '32, A. Kirkland Sloper '32, John A. Storm '32, Milton B. Brown '33, Clark H. Corliss '33, John F. Hartrey '33, Stephen C. Hoyle '33, Donald B. MacLean '33, and George E. Yeomans '33.

Blue Key was organized last year as a combination of Sages and Delta Tau, junior and sophmore honorary societies.

GEORGE E. FOOTE WINS K. D. R. CUP

George E. Foote '31, was awarded the Kapp Delta Rho cup because of his outstanding service to Middlebury College by President Paul D. Moody at the interfraternity variety show Thursday night, May 7.

This award is based on the individual's interest in extra-curricular activities including athletics and non-athletics, scholarship, character, and loyalty to the ideals and traditions of Middlebury College.

Mr. Foote has won his letter in football for three years and has been a member of the hockey team for four years. He was captain of hockey during his junior year. He has taken part in dramatics and has been a member of Delta Tau and Sages. He is now a member of Blue Key and president of Waubanakee. Mr. Foote is affiliated with Delta Kappa Epsilon.

1932 JUNIOR WEEK REPEATS SUCCESS OF FORMER YEARS

Promenade, Play, and Interfraternity Show Are Well Attended.

JEANETTE BURGESS CHOSEN PROM QUEEN

Tennis Team Undefeated in Three Matches Played on Home Courts.

The annual junior prom, as a part of the 1932 junior week festivities, was held in the Middlebury Inn last Friday evening. College students and guests who attended, numbering more than one hundred couples, passed a most enjoyable evening, and the dance was colored by the high spirits of the promenaders.

Perhaps the greater part of the success of the prom was due to the fine music furnished by Billy Murphy and his Royal Arcadians. From the comments and congratulations offered by the dancers, the committee feels that their choice of orchestras was wholly satisfactory.

Decorations included a blue and white scheme over the orchestra and panels of the same colors placed on the curtains; there was an unusual feature added in the form of black silhouettes on a white background, in all the windows. Programs were attractively made in silver and black.

The customary promenade came after the fourth dance, and at this time the prom queen and her four ladies in waiting were selected. Jeanette Burgess '32, was honored with the title of Prom Queen of 1932, and her attendants were Geraldine Griffin '31, Eleanor Benjamin '32, Marion Ball '33, and Dorothy Wilson '34.

Guests and chaperons included Representative and Mrs. John E. Weeks, Pres. and Mrs. Paul D. Moody, Dean Eleanor S. Ross, Dean Burt A. Hazeltine, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Fritz, Mrs. Maud O. Mason, and Miss Mary S. Rosevear. The committee was composed of William E. Horr, chairman, Richard Berry, Jeanette Burgess, Lynn Callin, Harwood Cummings, Georgiana Hulett, Elizabeth Lee, James Olson, and Anna Omwake.

MASSIE WILL ENTER LITERARY CONTEST

Competition to Take Place at Mount Holyoke College May 15.

Elizabeth Massie '31, will represent Middlebury College in the annual Kathryn Irene Glascock poetry contest, to be held at Mount Holyoke college, Friday, May 15.

Six colleges are taking part in the competition, the entrants being Dartmouth, Harvard, Middlebury, Mount Holyoke, Vassar, and Yale. Each representative will be required to read for twelve minutes poetry of his or her own authorship after which the manuscripts will be turned over to the judges for careful study and grading. The prize to go to the winner is $100. Judges are William Rose Benet, brother of Stephen Benet; Grace Hazard Conkin; and a third person yet to be decided upon.

The competition is held each year, participation of the various colleges being by invitation of those in charge of the contest. Prof. R. L. Cook is largely responsible for securing Middlebury's participation this year. Cooperating with him were Gordon Chalmers and Roberta Swartz, two members of the Mount Holyoke faculty.

Saxonian Board of Next Year Elected in Chapel

Elections for the Saxonian board of the coming year were held in chapel May 12. Frederick N. Zuck '32, was re-elected editor-in-chief, and William E. Dorn '32, was elected business manager. The others who are to comprise the board are as follows: Arthur D. Brundidge '33, associate editor; Alan H. Painter '33, assistant business manager; Altha J. Hall '33, advertising manager.

Mr. Zuck was class president his freshman year, won the first prize in the Saxonian short story contest last year, and is a member of the German and English clubs. He is Delta Upsilon. Mr. Dorn won his freshman cross country numerals and was on the frosh frolic committee. He is a member of Wig and Pen, was assistant business manager of this year's Saxonian, and on the junior play committee.

CHANGE IN STUDENT GOVERNMENT RULES

Riding Rule is More Lenient While Granting of Late Permission is Restricted.

At the student government meeting, Tuesday, May 5, several modifications were made in last year's rules. The rules changed were, the riding rule, the freshman walking rule, and late permission.

The new riding rule affects the three upper classes. Seniors may ride one couple in the day and two couples at night without a chaperon. Juniors may ride one couple in the day and two couple at night without a chaperon. Sophomores may ride one couple in the day and two couples at night with a chaperon. Freshmen may ride two couples in the day and two couples at night with a chaperon.

The freshmen walking rule was changed to read: freshmen women are permitted to walk at night with a man but it shall count as a "night out".

According to records of late permissions kept in the dean's office it appeared that this privilege had been abused during the last year. As a result social late permissions will be restricted as follows: seniors may have four late permissions each semester plus the regular Wednesday and Saturday permissions; juniors may have four permissions a semester; and freshmen and sophomores may have three a semester.

Chaperons are defined as the parents of one member of a party except in the case of a dance when faculty members, trustee members and their wives are approved chaperons.

In order to obtain the opinions of members of the women's college the student government council has put boxs for suggestions in all the main women's dormitories. The new president, Marion R. Singiser '32, has expressed the wish that members would regard the association not as a police force but as an organization working for the benefit of the women students in other ways primarily, as this is its true policy.

WEIER AND McKEE DEBATE MANAGERS

William S. Weier '33 and Donald C. McKee '34, were elected manager and assistant manager respectively of men's debating, at a meeting of the varsity team held after chapel Wednesday morning.

Mr. Weier has been active in debating throughout the past two years; serving in the capacity of assistant manager during the past season and as a member of the men's team in the annual contest with the women's college. He is a member of the dramatic club, Spanish club, Tau Kappa Alpha, and editor-in-chief of the 1933 Kaleidoscope. He is a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Mr. McKee won his freshman cross country nurmerals and is an active member of the dramatic club. He is Beta Psi.

WAUBANAKEE TAPS SIX NEW MEMBERS FROM JUNIOR CLASS

Kline, Markowski, Nelson, Sloper, Thiele, and Thrasher Chosen.

SENIOR SOCIETY IS SELF-PERPETUATING

Interest in Activities of College is Main Factor in Choice.

Six men from the junior class were tapped as new members to Waubanakee just before the Middlebury-Vermont baseball game on Porter field Thursday afternoon, May 7.

Waubanakee is a self-perpetuating senior honorary society and its members consist of those men in the senior class who have done the most for Middlebury as shown by interest in extra-curricular activities.

Those selected were:

Reamer Kline
Walter J. Nelson
Edward W. Markowski
A. Kirkland Sloper
Eugene H. Thiele
Charles E. Thrasher

Mr. Kline is editor of the CAMPUS, literary editor of the 1932 Kaleidoscope, a contributing editor to the Saxonian, a member of the press club and the English club, the dramatic club, and Pi Delta Epsilon. He also edited the freshman handbook in his sophomore year. He has been active in debating for the three years. He has been manager for the past two years, and last spring won first Lawrence prize in the Vermont-Middlebury debate. He also won the first Lawrence Middlebury debating prize his freshman year, and was third placer in the Parker prize speaking contest. He was awarded the first Wetherell debating prize his sophomore year, and third prize in the Saxonian short story contest this year. Mr. Kline is president of Tau Kappa Alpha, and a member of Blue Key. He was on the dean's list his freshman and sophomore

PARKER AND MERRILL CONTESTS ANNOUNCED

Titles and Manuscripts of Prize-Speaking Essays Must be Handed in Today.

The Parker and Merrill prize-speaking contests, longstanding institutions at Middlebury, will take place May 21 and May 28 respectively. Contestants from the freshman class wishing to compete for the Parker award and sophomore men trying for the Merrill prize are requested to hand in the titles of their speeches together with the manuscripts to President Moody not later than tonight.

Beginning in 1921 the prizes in both contests have been increased and now are: first prize $50, second $35, third $25, and fourth $20. The men taking part in the final event are chosen in preliminary contests, and they are given thorough and valuable training by Prof. Perley C. Perkins of the English department. Men interested and having talent along oratorical lines have been urged to enter their names as contestants.

The Parker prizes were established by gift of Daniel Parker, Esq., in 1807, and Professor Frederick Hall in 1820. The winners last year were Anthony Brackett and Thomas Duffield. The Merrill prizes were established in 1882 by bequest of Rev. Thomas Abbott Merrill, D. D., Trustee, 1806-55. Gray Taylor and Robert Perry won these prizes last year.

PLAYING THE GAME.

(An explanation of the second point in our announced editorial policy)

Going into the city on the New York Central, one passes Columbia university's Baker field. Here throughout most of the year may be seen a large billboard advertising the season's first football game, the Columbia-Middlebury contest. Proud Middlebury students and alumni never neglect to point out the extremely valuable publicity that is accruing to the college. It is well that we enjoy this one "advantage", for the Columbia game offers no other gain.

Standing upon our stated intention to seek the limitation of athletic schedules to opponents of Middlebury's own class, let us consider first the arguments in favor of playing large institutions. We concentrate our attention upon football, for there the problem is most acute, and reform once effected in that sport will spread to others. If the purpose of the Columbia game is to give metropolitan alumni a chance to see Middlebury play, the same goal would be better achieved by selecting some other college in the vicinity and of more nearly our own strength; if it is to earn a large profit on the guarantee received, the game becomes a business venture, and the players should be paid their proportionate share of the earnings; if it is to put Middlebury in the minds of prospective freshmen, it should be pointed out that the best students base their selection of a college upon reasons worthier than seeing its name upon the front page of the New York Times or on the Baker field billboards; if it is to advertise the college (and the advertising value of a 48-0 defeat can be questioned) then we must remodel our conception of the purpose of a college football team. The value of competition is supposed to be the justification for intercollegiate athletics, and competition prevails only when each of two opponents stands some chance of winning. Therefore we say drop the large universities from our schedules, and start the season a week or two later, thereby eliminating the necessity for the universally hated spring and early season training, and the need for the bitterly earned profit of the Columbia guarantee.

Secondly, we seek the increasing development of intramural sports, since we believe that the goal of college athletics is the healthy particpation of every individual in some organized sport, and not the production of undefeated teams. More of the English conception of sport for sport's sake would not be amiss. The recent Painter-faculty games are steps in the right direction; the work of Blue Key in increasing interest through the donation of prizes and awards is commendable; the recent figures of the athletic department, showing the participation in organized sports, evidence a most satisfying trend. Surely the will to follow a beneficial program is here, but the means is sadly lacking. Present courts, fields, and tracks, are being utilized one hundred percent, and are insufficient. Unfortunately an "athletics for all" policy requires equipment for all, and Middlebury cannot now meet that requirement.

Finally we stand in favor of the award of the same standard letter for all major and minor sports, holding that this policy would eliminate present fasle values in college athletics. We realize that our position may quite justifiably incur the enmity of present major letter holders, but the good of all participants in sports must be considered. There is no justification for the present discriminatory system for the award of athletic insignia. If the size of present letters depends upon the amount of work done, the insignia of the first string fullback should be larger than that of the scrub; if it is based upon public interest in the game and gate receipts, then we must admit we are thinking not of the worth of the sport to the individual, but are stooping to consider the game's worth as a business proposition; if it depends upon the value the participant receives from the game, then the present idea is all wrong and tennis and golf, as the sports most valuable in later life, should receive the largest "M". Furthermore, it is not possible to prove that any given sport requires more time or ability than any other. Why then have foolish discriminations that measure one's greatness by the design upon his sweater? Why not abolish false glamours which force men, goaded by vanity or fraternity, to go out for a letter rather than for a sport?

Galley Grist

AXEL'S CASTLE, by Edmund Wilson, New York, Charles Scribner's Sons.

AXEL'S CASTLE, a study in the imaginative literature of 1870-1930, is a book which should be of intense interest to the student of contemporary literature. Feeling that "The literary history of our times is to a great extent that of the development of symbolism, and of its fusion or conflict with naturalism," the author traces the movement in the works of W. B. Yeats, Paul Valery, T. S. Eliot, Marcel Proust, James Joyce and Gertrude Stein.

Symbolism started as a reaction against nineteenth century naturalism and has served its purpose and about run its course, according to the writer, and he gives a good estimate of the situation when he whites: "The writers with whom I here here been concerned have not only, then, given us works of literature, which, for intensity, brilliance and boldness, as well as for an architectual genius, an intellectual mastery of their materials, rare among their romantic predecessors, are probably comparable to the work of any time. Though it is true that they have tended to over emphasize the importance of the individual, that they have been preoccupied with introspection, sometimes almost to the point of insanity, that they have endeavored to discourage their readers, not only with politics, but with action of any kind, they have yet succeeded in effecting in literature a revolution analagous to that which has taken place in science and philosophy: they have broken out of the old mechanistic routine, and they have revealed to the imagination a new flexibility and freedom. And though we are aware in them of things that are dying, they none the less break down the walls of the present and wake us to the hope and exaltation of the untried, unsuspected possibilities of human thought and art."

Symbolism has had an increasing influence both in the fields of art and religion, and this book reveals the like manner in which it has influenced literature.

Once again the delinquent girl gains a place in contemporary writing. GOLDY GETS ALONG, by Hawthorne Hurst, to be published by Alfred King, Inc. on June 5th, is a book aimed against the delinquent girl societies as they function in the American small town. The author shows how parental authority, weary of its responsibilities, turns over its charge to these "vice-breeding homes", how a girl who wanted a good time is forced to live with thieves and racketeers, how she learns to depend on her wits, and how in the end she ropes a fortune. Once again an underdog is to be glorified, an institution taken for a ride, and a reading public fed intellectually on an apparently unsavory mess.

Now that the Pulitzer prizes for the year have been awarded, one is pleased to find that the "Collected Poems" of Robert Frost have been awarded the prize given for the best volume of verse. This is the second time that this author has won this prize, and the recent award is but an added evidence of the fact that he is gaining an ever wider reputation as America's greatest living poet, and as long as we have writers of Frost's ability we have little to fear for the future of American literature.

Shreds and Patches

And now junior week has whirled away leaving us in the doldrums of the morning-after feeling. Oh, well, we at least won some tennis; and the prom orchestra was something to tell posterity about, so both athletically and socially, the holiday was a success. (Heh, heh!).

The new addition to the staff of assistant managers of baseball, better known as ball retrievers, was received with the heartiest grandstand support last Thursday, but we missed his elfin presence Saturday. "They call him Jawn."

Then somebody had to go and leave the biology lab cages open and let droves of rabbits loose, popping across in front of bewildered fielders in the Norwich game. Foul!

We trust that the freshmen will not be so carried away by the ecstacy of freedom in cutting campus and running up down old chapel steps that they cannot resume their former mien of serfdom, now that the three day paradise is past.

Judging from news from other campuses, college presidents are facing heavy fire from various sources, student and otherwise. St. Lawrence tries the mob effect of a walkout to remove prexy, and out in Madison, the University of Wisconsin is the scene of heated friction between President Glenn Frank, ex-editor of Century and state Governor Philip La Folette, on such interesting subjects as the management of the graduate department and a proposed series of birth control lectures.

A touch of irony is supplied when the college freshmen is compelled by insinuating invitation, to write 50,000 words (the figures quoted are approximate) on the enticing subject, "Who am I?" Just another step in the passing off of a required course, one must be 85% certain as to specifically who he is.

If all angels experienced as much difficulty in returning to their ethereal realms as did the specimen with which we were treated at the stunt show, no wonder angelic visitation has been on the decline since Bible times.

Among the wonders of science are babies, just old enough to travel by rail, already developing size nine feet and the traces of a moustache.

And a recent medical convention brought out the supposedly revolutionary announcement that from trends in physical development, men in the future will be born without teeth. We, in our ignorance, thought that was the way we arrived at present.

May we take this opportunity to announce that our respective books have been closed with a finality which is nothing more or less than a tribute to the weather. From now on it's up to the professor, whether he wants to meet with us again next year in the same course or not. Superbly inactive is the motto.

May we present George (himself) Farrell, latest find in the weight throwing department of our track squad? (Deafening applause).

Speaking of George, we shudder to think of the cold blooded wretch stalking the innocent pigeon aloft in the gym. He takes his trusty pop gun and blots out the life (sniff) of one whose only crime was participation in a unit of the variety show Thursday night. j.t.

What is really needed is a week to rest up from resting during Junior week.

Just when the freshmen can cut campus, certain helpful souls have to come along and spoil it all by digging ditches across our fair dandelion fields.

Visitors had a chance to see Middlebury wild life in the raw last Saturday, when a rabbit tore around the bases at Porter field during the Norwich game. Too bad that he or she wasn't eligible for the track team.

Now that the shooting, pardon, we mean the interfraternity variety show is over, the bathrobes can be put back into their prosaic uses again. t.n.

After watching the Frosh-Sophomore rope pull one wonders why it is given that name, when by all appearances anyone may participate, if the spirit so moves them.

Why not arrange a second rope pull, especially for those people who cannot allow the picked teams to fight it out for themselves? This would also save the Sophs the humility of seeing their sudden help depart as soon as multitudinous freshmen begin to drag the field with them.

Here we have the freshman who thought "Slow Smoke" was the life story of a lazy Pullman porter. Go on, laugh.

Isn't it funny how even the weather has post-prom blues?

COMMUNICATION

To the editor of the CAMPUS:

It is unfortunate that a large part of the faculty and students of Middlebury College do not appear to have any degree of interest in activities which reflect credit upon the institution of which they are members. Last Friday evening the women's glee club gave an excellent concert that should have been well attended. There were about twenty students and fourteen members of the faculty present.

In the preparation of their program the women worked for months. They sang in a finished and musicianly manner which did them credit, but they had every right to feel discouraged that the work of the year was attended with such little interest.

The home concert of the men's glee club is another case in point. At the last out-of-town concert the men sang before an enthusiastic audience of a thousand students at International house and, coming back to Middlebury, they appeared before a somewhat silent audience of 150. Fortunately, the out-of-town appearances of the men's organization convinced the members of a usefulness to the college that is hardly apparent in the support awarded them at home. It is clear that those various organizations which are doing most to advertise the college, the debating teams, etc., are the organizations which are most poorly supported in Middlebury. In view of the outside success of such organizations, the lack of support given them at home evidences both lack of loyalty and discrimination.

JUNIOR WEEK ENDS WITH VESPERS TALK

Dr. Oscar E. Maurer Speaks of that Quality of Life Which is God's Gift to Us.

Dr. Oscar E. Maurer of New Haven, Conn., was the speaker at the vesper service Sunday, May 10, the closing event of junior week.

He said in part: "On an island in the North Sea in a region noted for congested shipping and heavy fog there is an important light house which used to burn an oil lamp of 10,000 candle power. The government authorities later replaced this by an electric arc of 1,000,000 candle power. Almost immediately Trinity House in London began to receive complaints that British merchants could not see now in the fog as well as they could before. The oil lamp, though not so powerful, was more penetrating and gave a better light. It is evident that the ability to shine through fog depends on the quality rather than the intensity or quantity of the light.

"Civilization has almost instinctively been compared to light, of which there are many kinds. Some dazzle and confuse, some destroy. In the sense of accomplishing something there is a great difference between people. Many shine by themselves but lose their quality when the fog settles around them.

"Nero and Louis XIV graced their realms with the brilliance of poets, artists, musicians, writers, etc. But where is that brilliance now? We must search to find it because it has added nothing to life. Through the ages, some epochs of far less intensity and less power have penetrated and endured while others flashed and faded.

"The lives of people, however humble, have shone because of a certain quality they possess. The disciples of Jesus showed no flashes of genius. They were mostly men uneducated in the wisdom of the world but they had that quality of 'getting through'. They were surrounded by a fog but they shone through it because they had a certain quality of life.

"The Christian church will survive only as long as it has that quality of life which is the gift of the Lord. The world has never been saved by cleverness or brilliancy, by might or by power. These modernists who have so easily discarded God think it is a great accomplishment but does this emptiness shine through the fog? The thing that has saved people is that light of Christ-like living which has penetrated the fog of their bewilderment. It is from the spirit of Jesus that the light goes out.

"The only way it is possible to see Christ is to see him in some one else. A Chinese professor, definitely opposed to Christianity, nevertheless declared his reverence for Jesus Christ, his spirit of forgiveness and sacrifice. What he knows about the spirit of Jesus he learned not from books and the like but from the actions of the men and women who are serving Christ in China.

"What we know of the greatness and the goodness of living we have learned from life, from experience. We are meant to be lights of the world, that is our purpose. Are we fulfilling it? Light can shine only if it has the quality of God. Let those of us who are not insensible to the spiritual world light our hands once more at the lamp of God and let us not be ashamed to have people know that we are in touch with the source of light."

Davidson Will Provides for Founding of Scholarship

According to the will of the late Frank P. Davidson which was filed in the Addison county probate court, a memorial was left to Middlebury College in the name of the testator's son, Wilfred E. Davison, '13 in the form of a liberal scholarship fund. The younger Davison was a member of the Middlebury English department until his death in 1929.

Under the terms of the will, Mr. Davison's property is left to his wife for her use during her lifetime, and afterwards will revert to the college. It is specified that this money and property be used to establish a scholarship to assist "some poor boy" in his education at Middlebury College.

DRAMA REVIEW

"The Romantic Age" is a typical Milne production requiring great deftness in handling and delicacy in presentation of character and dialogue, if it is to make the appeal intended by its author. For that reason it is a dangerous play to choose, and the Junior class is to be especially congratulated upon an excellent presentation.

The settings were delightful. Especially beautiful was the moonlight scene at the close of act I. The glade in the wood which was the setting for act II was a revelation in the possibilities of set construction that have been developed in the play production courses. It showed a distinct advance over anything that had been attempted before both in effectiveness and beauty.

The play was excellently cast. Marion Jones as the permanently invalided Mrs. Knowles showed a fine appreciation of the humorous possibilities in speeches and characterization which the part contained. Miss Lee was a most charming Melisande with just the requisite delicacy of touch to make the character come alive. Miss Stebbins was equally effective in the part of Jane Bagot, Melisande's cousin. She was especially skillful in the scene with Bobby in which he proposed to her. Miss Merriam filled in the picture perfectly as the maid, Alice.

The five men were evidently chosen as carefully as were the women. Mr. Morize, as Mr. Knowles, was the perfect husband for a permanently invalided wife. He knew just how unnecessary it was to worry and developed a delicate but effective humor under adversity. Mr. Potter, as Bobby, had a difficult part, because to be a proper young Englishman means that one must be devoid of much imagination and not too subtle in one's mental reactions. The audience gets the impression at first that the actor is stiff because he is stiff. Mr. Potter convinced at least one spectator that the actor was stiff because that quality was demanded by the character. He apparently knew what he was about. Mr. Cummings had the difficult problem of assimilating romance to modern requirements and made a success of it. His acting was natural and restrained throughout. In Mr. Phinney the play produced an original low comedian. The details of his presentation of the character of Ern were very funny from hair to toes but not a single movement was inconsistent with the character. Mr. Taylor was the ideal pedler, more interested in what he sees in his wanderings than in what he sells. His characterization of Master Susan was excellent.

It is a pity that for so artistic and enjoyable a presentation the house was not sold out both nights. But such good fortune is probably no longer to be expected when the play is placed in competition with the Variety Show and other Junior Week activities. Y.K.W.

Prof. Kingsley to Teach at Albany this Summer

The appointment of Prof. Julian S. Kingsley, professor of secondary education, to the staff of the summer session of the New York state college for teachers at Albany has been announced by Dr. M. G. Nelson, director.

Professor Kingsley will teach courses in principles of education at Albany this summer. The session, which is expected to attract between 800 and 1000 students, will begin June 29, ending August 7. Courses will be offered for teachers, administrators and supervisors of elementary, junior and senior high schools.

New College at Poultney Will Open in September

A new junior college, to be known as the Green Mountain college of Poultney, will open its doors to students next fall, this important move being voted upon at a special meeting of the broad of trustees of Troy Conference academy.

A bond issue for $75,000 was voted and a sum exceeding $100,000 was subscribed during the first five minutes after it was announced. The board announces that a two year junior college course will be offered, the college work to be entirely separate and distinct from the academy work.

MIDDLEBURY WINS VERMONT DEBATE

Lawrence Prizes Awarded to Nelson of Vermont, and Duffield and Yerovitz of Middlebury.

Middlebury's debating team closed their season with a 2-1 decision over Vermont Tuesday May 5, upholding the negative of the question, resolved, that the present trends in journalism are to be deplored. Middlebury was represented by Thomas Duffield '33, Edward Yerovitz '33, and Reamer Kline '32; and Vermont by Peter Donaghy, Paul La Cross, and George Nelson. The Lawrence prizes for the Middlebury-University of Vermont debate, amounting to $25, $15, and $10, were awarded to George Nelson of Vermont, Edward Yerovitz, and Thomas Duffield respectively.

Vermont's case was opened by Mr. Donaghy, who told of the evils in modern journalism caused by huge chains which dictated newspaper policy in all sections of the country. This, he said, is destructive to any freedom of the press. Mr. La Cross went on to tell of the influence capitalists have over modern newspapers and the opportunities that they have to influence public opinion wrongly by publishing news colored to suit their own ends. The third affirmative speaker, Mr. Nelson, told of the dangerous influences the tabloid newspapers have on morality in the home.

The negative case was opened by Mr. Duffield, who showed that the trend in the tabloid newspapers is toward the better by comparison with the earlier tabloids of twelve years ago. It is better, he said, for people to read the tabloids than no paper at all, since most of those who read the tabloids have not sufficient intelligence to read the regular newspapers. Mr. Yerovitz defended the modern newspaper chains on the ground that they make greater accomplishmnt possible because of larger capital invested. News gathering requires too much work and money to be handled by any single paper. Mr. Kline completed the negative arguments by showing that capital is an advantage to a newspaper, and that much greater freedom exists with the larger papers than the smaller ones, since the small newspapers are too easily influenced by local business men and are not able to withstand the advances of single persons as larger papers which are owned by corporations are.

In the rebuttal speeches, the affirmative showed further that the tabloids exerted a deplorable influence, and that they could be spared with no loss to the reading public. The negative contended that tabloids had no influence on crime, that they had no influence on the circulation of other papers, and that they themselves lost circulation when they became to immoral.

Delta Delta Delta Holds Its Annual Formal Dance

Alpha Iota of Delta Delta Delta held its annual formal dance at the Middlebury Inn Saturday evening, May 2. Thirty-six couples attended and danced to music by a ten piece Middleburian orchestra. Guests from out-of-town included Miss Jessie Griffin of Albany, N. Y., Miss Katherine Farrar of Providence, R. I., and Miss Carol Garretson of Queens Village, N. Y. Miss Elizabeth Smith represented Vermont Eta.

The patrons and patronesses were President and Mrs. Paul D. Moody, Prof. and Mrs. William S. Burrage, Prof. and Mrs. Frank E. Howard, Miss Eleanor S. Ross and Miss Ellen E. Wiley.

Forty Couples Present at Junior Week Tea and Dance

The annual junior tea and dance was held at the Middlebury Inn Saturday afternoon, May 9, at 4:30 p. m. There was a large crowd dressed in summer attire to enjoy this event of the week-end program.

Nina Barber '32, Avis Collins '32, and Clarissa Holland '32, served iced tea and sandwiches. Music was furnished by three members of the Black Panther orchestra.

BETA KAPPA HOLDS CONVENTION HERE

Middlebury Chapter Host to New England Conclave; Representatives From Three Other Colleges Attend.

The first New England province conclave of the Beta Kappa fraternity took place in Middlebury during the first three days of junior week, Epsilon chapter being host to delegates from the University of Maine, Tufts college and the University of New Hampshire.

Previous Beta Kappa conventions have been national, but this year each of the seven provinces assembles separately in addition to sending delegates to the national biennial meetings. New England is the first province to hold its conclave and since Epsilon is the oldest of the New England chapters, it was fitting that the first meeting be held in Middlebury.

Three delegates from Theta chapter of Tufts, three from Omicron of the University of Maine and two from Phi Delta Upsilon fraternity of the University of New Hampshire attended the convention. Among those from Tufts was Mr. Robert L. Nichols, counsellor for the New England province and professor of geology at Tufts.

Besides attending various junior week functions the guests enjoyed other recreations and attended business meetings. The program of the entire conclave was under the direction of Alden C. Utton '31, and closed with a banquet at the House Saturday evening.

Alumni who returned for the event were Melvin Livingston '25, Ralph Lilly '26, Roger Cleveland '28, Donald Lindsley '28, Paul Butler '29, Frank DeWitt '29, Ellis Bemiss '30, C. Lloyd Mann '30 and Ralph Woodbury '30.

D. U. TAKES FIRST IN VARIETY SHOW

Delta Kappa Epsilon Ranks Second; Beta Kappa Given Honorable Mention.

Delta Upsilon won the cup for first place in the interfraternity variety show held May 7. Delta Kappa Epsilon was awarded second place, and Beta Kappa was given honorble mention.

A review of the various acts follows:

The winning act was called "A Sophomore's Dream", and by the smoothness of the action showed long practicing. The funniest part was a baby, made of "Scrap" Melby's head and hands, and Dick McGraw's feet. The scenery was better done than that in the other shows.

The Deke act, "Famous Names Corporations", had good costumes, and contained a very clever parody on Hamlet's speech, To be or not to be.

"Maybe It's Love" was presented by Beta Kappa. Although the dialogue was poor, the costumes were well-done, and the ingenious device of swinging the angel through the air was very amusing. The devil and his chorus of dancing girls performed well.

Chi Psi gave "Hearts and Flowers", with fair dialogue. It was well organized. Charles Kennedy made an excellent dean of women.

"Cannon-Fodder", by Beta Psi, was well-acted, had good properties, and very clever dialogue.

The neutrals presented "You and Me", a clever parody on "You and I", which was excellently written, with some good laughss. It was managed well.

"And the Lamp Went Out", by Alpha Sigma Phi, was a pantomine story better than such things usually are, but the idea has been over-worked. Their properties were good.

Sigma Phi Epsilon had the most elaborate costumes of all, and the ingenious cigar lighter on wheels added much to their act "Tinea Trichophyton". The take-off on the profs was fair.

Kappa Delta Rho's stunt had the advantage of being interesting to outsiders as well. It was called "Mary Had a Little Lamb", and was a series of parodies on the old nursery rhyme. Cal Affleck's take-off of a bashful boy was the best. c.m.

M. Strowski Gives Lecture at French Club Meeting

Prof. Fortunat Strowski of Paris spoke at the meeting of the French club April 30, in the Chateau, on "American Students in Paris". An informal discussion followed the lecture. M. Strowski was introduced as a professor of the faculty of letters at the Sorbonne and visiting professor this year at Columbia university.

The professor opened the address by briefly tracing university conditions in Europe from their early years to the present. The manner in which the modern student lives in Paris and how he studies was described at some length and the difference in the presentation of French and American courses was pointed out. M. Strowski made several valuable suggestions for American students entering the unaccustomed university life abroad.

Choral Club Presents "Holy City" Cantata May 3

The choral club, under the direction of Miss Minnie Hayden, instructor in music, presented "The Holy City," a sacred cantata in the Methodist church Sunday, May 3.

The chorus was assisted by four soloists: Henrietta Olsen '31, soprano; Elly Delfs '33, contralto; Ralph Locke '31, tenor; Philander Bates '31, bass. Richard Fear '31, was the conductor, with Jeanette Burgess '32, at the organ.

The program follows:

"Contemplation", organ prelude; "Invocation", Rev. H. C. Bennett; "No shadows yonder", chorus; "No weeping yonder", tenor solo, Ralph Locke; "No parting yonder", quartette; "No wanting yonder", chorus; "My soul is athirst for God",tenor solo, Ralph Locke; "They that sow in tears", chorus; "Eye hath not seen", contralto solo, Elly Delfs; "For thee, O dear dear country", chorus.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NOTES

Is the Game Worth the Candle?

The same do-or-die spirit in which our forebears drank themselves under the table persists today; it has become woven into the very pattern of our national life. Never a foreign cruiser looms on the horizon, but our navy howls to match it with ten. Our schools, our churches, our public buildings must awe the beholder with their magnificence and with their modern plumbing. Millions must be amassed. Faint heart never won fair fortune; the race is to the swift, and to the crooked. And now that we have our money, let us exult, oh let us build the most commanding structure in the world.

In college too, as well as in life, there are many games to play. We play them. We more than play them. We play them to the death.

First, there is the fraternity, that institution that has undertaken to teach us the social graces in return for $100 down and the balance to be paid in monthly installments. How faithfully like loyal sheep, do we flock to the holy portals every Wednesday to be re-injected with a dose of brotherly spirit. How ardently, and with what scheming wiles, do we seek to bring the lamb into the fold for the glory of God and of Chi Beta Phi.

Secondly, there is the game of marks, indulged in to excess by many, and moderately by the few. Here and there may be found a choice spirit who is getting an education in spite of the fact that he has come to college. He finds adventure in dipping into books. He takes delight in savoring the substance of this or that teacher, as one would sip of old wine, holding it up to the light and enjoying the flavor. But the nature of things makes this course a dangerous one. Marks rule in our college. We must grind, cajole, threaten; we must worship the mark.

Not the least harmful of games is competitive sport, as anyone will agree who troubles himself to look into this matter, consider it, and weigh the factors involved. Men come to college for an education; they find their values reversed, culture connived at, marks bowed down to, and the all powerful "D" adored. They are puzzled for a while, until sufficient college spirit has got into them to send them out on the football field in the performance of their doubtful duty. If all the sweat, blood, and muscle employed in pursuit of the "D" were laid end to end, something useful might be accomplished; if all the whipped up savagery of old grads at football games were directed into other channels, and dammed, and converted into power, it would light the entire city of New York for perhaps a day.

Of course, winning is some justification for effort and nervous power expended during a game. But there are times when even this consolation is not to be had. In England life goes on evenly, peacefully under the quiet of old elms in the quad. Shells glide along the river, soccer is played for the joy of it, and rugby for its own sake. No highly paid coaches "exhort their mettlesome charges." From Oxford a lacrosse team, ten pounds lighter to the man, comes to run circles round our corn-fed stalwarts; to the mournful tune of 12 to 1 they defeat us at our American game.

In review, what is the price of being socially among the elect? One hundred dollars down, ten dollars a month, and a college career spent in trying to mould oneself to the accepted pattern. What is the price of a Phi Beta Kappa key? Self-imposed confinement at a narrow cell while spring unfolds her miracle on the other side of the dusty pane. What is the price of a "D", symbol of rugged manhood, key to the charmed circle of campus popularity? Three hours a day of heart breaking competition, until the body becomes a machine and the mind part of the team mind, while the nerves cry out under the strain and are not heard.

Is the game worth the candle? Have we Americans forgotten, or have we never known the value of balance? This editorial is a plea for moderation, and a warning.

—An editorial in the Dartmouth.

True or False?

A clever Yale professor "put one over" on his classes recently, just after they had solved the problem regarding true and false tests.

In one of his classes there was a brilliant blind student who used a typewriter. It didn't take long for his classmates to discover that when he struck three keys the answer was "yes", if he struck two, the answer was "no". After this discovery they answered their questions accordingly. Soon the professor found out what was being done and privately asked the blind student to write "yes" for false questions, and "no" for true ones. He did this, and as a result every other student in the class had all the answers wrong.—The Bates Student.

Sensible Examinations.

The National Student Federation of America in its regular bulletin sends this suggestion on the ever-vexing examination problem:

"A new type of test for college students has been suggested by Prof. H. E. Smith of Brown University. The new plan calls for "comprehensive" examinations by referring to text books.

"Under the comprehensive system, the student goes to his college building on a certain day, draws a slip from a box in which he finds indicated a subject within the field of his knowledge. He must return 24 hours later with a complete lecture written on the subject. It must include an adequate bibliography of all material that he may select, and a fresh and personal treatment of the subject matter.

"The topics are chosen so that the task is hopeless for the student unless he has skill in the organization of data, and has possession of abundant facts. This new method of taking quizzes is expected to eliminate the mental strain that is encountered at present among students during the final examination period.

"This system is now in use in European universities and has met with wide approval from everyone, students and instructors alike. Professor Smith is of the opinion that the comprehensive examination method would be a boon to all American colleges and he heartily recommends its adoption."

MIDDLEBURY LOSES DEBATE TO VERMONT

Freshmen Women are Defeated in First Contest by 2 to 1 Decision.

The Middlebury women lost to Vermont by a 2 to 1 decision here, May 6, on the question, resolved, that installment buying is a menace to future prosperity.

The negative was upheld by a Middlebury team, composed of Lovina Foote '34, Mary Hall '34, and Alice Parsons '34. Rebecca Camp '34, Helen Cook '34, and Ruth Erwin '34, debated the affirmative for Vermont.

Edward Yerovitz '33, presided. The judges were Mr. Grandstaff, Mr. P. J. Hincks, and Mr. P. S. Ufford, all of Middlebury.

The Middlebury freshmen will meet a team composed of Keene freshmen on Tuesday, May 19, at Keene. The speakers for Middlebury who will uphold the negative side of the question, resolved, that communism constitutes a menace to our institutions, are Lovina Foote, Alice Parsons, and Clare Walker.

Kappa Phi Kappa Meets With Vermont Chapter

Last Wednesday a delegation from the Middlebury Mu of Kappa Phi Kappa went to Burlington where a joint meeting with the University of Vermont Alpha Gamma chapter was held.

Mr. David L. Dunn, coach of the Vermont football team, spoke briefly on the relationship of athletics to scholarship in both secondary schools and colleges. After a brief intermission during which refreshments were served, Mr. Erich Labouvie of Middlebury as guest speaker sketched in an interesting manner the university educational system of Germany.

Those attending from Middlebury were: Dr. Frank Howard, Mr. Erich N. Labouvie, C. Arthur Hazen '31, Richard Kelley '31, Samuel Abbott '31, George Belfanti '32, William McDonough '33.

PROSPECTS GLOOMY FOR BASEBALL TRIP

Middlebury's Chances Poor Against Boston University, Tufts, Northeastern, and Providence.

Coach Hessler's baseball squad, following two defeats in state series meetings junior week, started yesterday on a Massachusetts trip with very slight chance of winning any of their four games. The teams to be encountered are Boston university at Boston today, Tufts at Medford tomorrow, Northeastern at Boston Friday, and Providence at Providence on Saturday. All of these teams are stronger than Middlebury and have far better records.

Altho Middlebury can be conceded but little chance to take over any of these teams it is difficult to say just what is the reason for the poor prospects. In the two Junior week contests the Hesslerites committed the same amount of errors as their opponents. In the Norwich game, in fact, Midd had only two miscues while the Cadets mishandled the ball five times. However, the Panthers seem to make their mistakes at just the wrong time for their own chances and precisely the right time to allow the opponents to score.

The pitching staff of the home team is not quite what it should be perhaps, but it is not particularly bad. For example, Stefaniak set down the Vermont batters one, two, three in three different innings of the Vermont game, and in another inning only one hit was scored. But it mustn't be forgotten that eleven hits were chalked up for the Catamounts in this game and that they were bunched at the right time for the Catamounts.

That is a further trouble with Middlebury, the team can't hit in the pinches. In each of the sixth, seventh, and eighth innings of the Norwich game two men were left on base. The Hesslerites must learn to sock the ball at the crucial moment.

Opponents Show Strength.

All the teams Middlebury is to play have been meeting stronger opponents than Middlebury and have fair records in their credits. Boston university has a good team, having beaten Bates 17-8, and Clark 15-3, and showing great batting power, although they took it on the nose from Boston college 17-4.

Tufts has an unbroken winning streak, including victories over Bates, Bowdoin, and Brown.

Northeastern has played many strong teams and has an even record so far, with victories over Worcester tech 16-0, Clark 6-1, and Bowdoin 9-1, although displaying weakness in losing an 8-7 decision to Colby.

Providence has a strong team this year also. Upsala was defeated 4-3, Lowell textile institute 5-2, and Springfield 2-1, but they lost to the hard-hitting Manhattan team 5-2.

All of these opponents have better resources at their disposal than Middlebury and, barring accidents, should find little trouble in defeating the Panthers, who will be playing out of their class.

Play at St. Michael's Next Tuesday.

Middlebury will undertake their fourth state series game when they play at St. Michael's next Tuesday. The Mikemen have been defeated by the other state series contenders and were defeated 17-16 in last week's contest at Porter field. A better game than that is to be expected, but Middlebury should be able to overcome St. Mike's with good pitching, for they have not shown any signs of improvement, having lost to Vermont 5-0 last Saturday.

MIDDLEBURY LOSES TRACK MEET 72-63

Home Team Gains Most Points in Races, But Fails in Field Events.

The Middlebury track team lost a meet to Colby on Porter field by a short margin of nine points, 72-63, Friday afternoon, May 8. At no time during the contest was the outcome certain, and one more first place for the home team would have meant victory.

Throughout the program, Middlebury took a majority of places and points in the sprints and distances, and captured the pole vault and broad jump, but the rest of the field events went to the aggregation from Colby.

MacLean won second place in the 120 yard high hurdles and scored the same in the 220 low hurdles later. Brown and Bibby took first and second in the 100 yard dash, putting the blue and white four points ahead. From then on, the score wavered from one side to the other, never with any great lead for either team.

Hanson missed first place in the mile by the heartbreaking sprint of Caddoo of Colby. Sears finished yards ahead of Christie of Colby in the two mile. In the half mile, Thayer kept ahead of Fallon to the tape, for first and second, respectively. Fallon had previously taken a first in the quarter mile run, passing Williams of Colby by a marvelous sprint in the last fifty yards. Bibby took a first in the 220 yard dash, but Colby scored second and third with Martin and Hodkiewicz.

Colby took all three places in the shot put with Robinson, Pollard, and Sprague, while Perkins, Sprague and Pollard ran away with the hammer throw. Perkins established a new Colby record with his mark of 148 feet, 10 1-8 inches. Another clean sweep gave three places in the discus to Colby. In the javelin, Colby secured first and second while Lovell took third for Middlebury.

MacKenzie pole vaulted to a first place for Middlebury at 10 feet 6 inches, and Paul tied with Treworgy of Colby for second and third at three inches less. Robinson of Colby won first place high jumping, Affleck took second, and Schoonmaker tied with Glazier of Colby for third. Brown, Montgomery and Williams won all three places in the broad jump, to end the meet.

The summary:

100 yard dash: Brown (M), Bibby (M), Martin (C), Time 10.6 sec.

220 yard dash: Bibby (M), Martin (C), Hodkiewicz (C), Time 23.9 sec.

120 high hurdles: Wheeler (C), MacLean (M), Robinson (C). Time 16.2 sec.

220 low hurdles: Wheeler (C), MacLean (M), Williams (C). Time 26.9 sec.

440 yard run: Fallon (M), Williams (C), Deemer (M) and Hodiewicz (C) tied third. Time 51.8 sec.

880 yard run: Thayer (M), Fallon (M), Caddoo (C). Time 2 min. 4.6 sec.

Mile run. Caddoo (C), Hanson (M), Chase (M). Time 4 min. 41.8 sec.

Two mile run: Sears (M), Christie (C), Harwood (M). Time 10 min. 16.6 sec.

Shotput: Robinson (C), Pollard (C), Martin (C). Distance 38 ft. 1 in.

Hammer: Perkins (C), Sprague (C), Pollard (C). Distance 148 ft, 10 1-8 in. (new Colby record).

Discus: Pollard (C), Perkins (C), Rhoades (C). Distance 125 ft. 11 1-4 in.

Javelin: Treworgy (C), Stinchfield (C), Lovell (M). Distance 179 ft. 4 in.

High jump: Robinson (C), Affleck (M), Schoonmaker (M) and Glazier (C) tied third. Height 5 ft. 9 in.

Broad jump: Brown (M), Montgomery (M), Williams (M). Distance 20 ft. 4.5 in.

Pole vault: MacKenzie (M), Paul (M), and Treworgy (C) tied second and third. Height 10 ft. 6 in.

Final score: Middlebury 63; Colby 72.

NET TEAM PLAYS TWICE THIS WEEK

Two games are scheduled this week for the Middlebury varsity tennis team. Vermont will be met in a return match at Burlington, Friday, and St. Michael's will furnish the opposition at Hepburn courts, Saturday.

The home team should chalk up another victory against Vermont, although the green and gold furnished the strongest opposition thus far. Flagg '34, is expected to repeat his victory over Tupper, the number one Vermont man. Jennings and Volkmar are showing up well and should give a good account of themselves. St. Michael's with an unusually weak team is not expected to be a real threat as they were blanked in the last encounter 6-0.

The following men will probably make the trip to Burlington Friday: Sloper '32, Huntington '31, Morize '32, Hendrie '33, Loomis '33, Volkmar '33, Flagg '34, Jennings '34 and Robart '34.

PANTHERS LOSE TWO STATE SERIES GAMES

Norwich Scores 6-3 Victory; Vermont Captures 9-0 Decision in Junior Week Contests.

Middlebury's baseball team lost state series games to both Vermont and Norwich during Junior week.

The Catamounts won their game, Thursday, by a 9-0 score. Against Norwich, Saturday, the battle was not so one sided, but the Panthers were forced to bow to the Cadets 6-3.

In the Vermont contest, the southpaw slants of Rutkowski had the blue and white batters completely baffled. Stefaniak, Nelson, and Murphy shared the five Panther hits. Led by Jay, who connected for two homers, a triple, and a single in five trips to the plate, the Catamount batters made eleven hits, produced nine runs. Stefaniak pitched a spotty game for the Hesslerites, but the support he received was far from good.

The Vermont crew went right out after runs in the first inning. Singles by Jay, Winant, and Rutkowski plus a passed ball resulted in two runs. In the second inning the Green and Gold scored again. Jay's homer in the fifth was followed by a pair of hits, to boost the Vermont score by two runs. Jay drove the ball over the right field wall again in the seventh, while his triple to deep right in the ninth inning scored two runners ahead of him. The last Vermont score came in the same inning when Jay scored on Pire's one base hit.

Although allowed but five hits, Middlebury had a few chances to score. Double plays killed the Panthers' chances in the fourth and fifth innings. Hessler's men had their best opportunity to tally in the eighth, when the bases were filled with two out. Nelson, however, fouled out to the catcher for the third down.

Failure to hit in the pinches, cost Middlebury the game against Norwich. The Cadets bunched their seven hits off Olson to score six runs, while the Panthers made five hits, reached first safely on errors five times, and were presented with four bases on balls, but they managed to score only three runs. Nelson's homer was the only real hit made by the Hesslerites.

The blue and white scored twice in the first inning when Duke Nelson lifted a fly over the center fielder's head for a home run, sending Stefaniak in ahead of him. In the second inning Crocker singled, Hartrey forced him at second, Olson walked, and Sorenson brought in Hartrey with a one base hit. During the rest of the game, the Pan-

PANTHERS DEFEAT ST. MICHAEL'S 17-16

Middlebury won the first contest of the state baseball series from St. Michael's by the score of 17-16, in a loosely played game Tuesday, May 5.

The score see-sawed back and forth throughout. Middlebury was in the lead 12-10 at the beginning of the ninth but St. Michael's made six runs in its half to take a commanding lead. However, the Hesslerites gathered five runs in their half to take the game.

The play of both teams was loose and both hit hard and long. Hartrey hit a home run, but was called out for not touching third. Nelson and Dupuis collected triples and Olson gathered a two bagger. Crocker gathered four safe bingles to top the Middlebury batters. Yeomans and Jim Olson also hit well, each getting three safe blows. McGowan led the St. Mike's cohorts with four safe hits.

The winners used three pitchers, the losers two. Ashdown started on the mound for the Panthers and was replaced in the second after he had let in six runs. Anderson, his successor, twirled until the ninth when he cracked and Olson was put in to finish the fray. Burke started for St. Michael's but shifted with Dupuis early in the game.

Delta Upsilon Defeats Faculty.

Delta Upsilon's baseball team scored a 9-7 victory over the faculty in a contest played on Porter field Friday afternoon.

The faculty used their regular lineup, while the fraternity put two complete teams on the field. Although the faculty fought hard, they were slow in starting and could not overcome the D. U. lead.

The score:

MIDDLEBURY NETMEN REMAIN UNDEFEATED

St. Lawrence, Vermont, and New York State Teachers Downed by Panther.

The blue and white tennis team met and defeated three opposing teams on three successive days during junior week on Hepburn courts. St. Lawrence was easily disposed of by an 8 to 1 score while the New York state teacher's college offered little more competition, being defeated Friday morning, 5 to 1. The home netmen were fatigued when they met Vermont and the score was 4 to 2.

Flagg '34, played number one in all matches and was undefeated, taking his St. Lawrence opponent 6-4, 7-5; his State Teacher's opponent, 6-0, 6-1, and climaxing his play by a win over the Vermont star, Tupper, 8-6, 6-4. He played consistent tennis and his position as number one man on the Panther net team is secure.

Against St. Lawrence Captain Sloper played number two, Huntington, Jennings, Volkmar and Robart playing singles in that order, all of them winning their matches. Jennings and Flagg won their doubles match as did Loomis and Allen, the latter taking 10-8 to win the first set but winning the second 6-1. Sloper and Huntington played number one doubles but were defeated by a close score.

The state teacher's matches found Flagg playing number one with Captain Sloper again playing number two, dropping a close match to his opponent. Jennings and Hendrie played and won their singles matches while Huntington and Sloper took their doubles match.

BLUE TEAM TO ENTER INTERCOLLEGIATES

Thirteen Colleges to Participate in Meet at Worcester Saturday.

A small group of seasoned athletes will represent Middlebury College in the eastern intercollegiate meet Saturday, May 16, at Worcester, Mass. At this contest there will be teams from thirteen of the smaller colleges of New England, members of the eastern intercollegiate athletic association.

Colleges which will compete in this multi-sided meet are Amherst college, Connecticut agricultural college, Massachusetts state college, Northeastern university, Norwich university, Rhode Island state college, Springfield college, Trinity college, Middlebury College, Tufts college, Union college, Vermont university, and Worcester polytechnic institute. Of these, Springfield and Northeastern seem slated for high scores, and if Union sends a team to the competition, they should rate well, for thus far their season has been very successful.

While no definite announcement has been made by Coach Brown regarding the men who will be selected to represent the college they will probably be chosen from among the following: Hanson '31, Paul '31, Thayer '31, Harwood '32, Brown '33, and Mackenzie '33. It is possible that others from the squad will be picked who are not named here, but owing to the association regulation that no freshmen are to be entered in the meet, Middlebury will be without the strength of Fallon, Lovell, Munford, Schoonmaker and Sears.

Because of a general weakness in the weight department, Coach Brown has decided that no men will be taken with the sole object of entry in the tosses, but some of the track event men may possibly compete in the discus and shotput.

M. Boyd Brown '33, is expected to be the highest scorer from Middlebury in the large field of competition. However, he pulled a leg tendon in the Colby meet and it is doubtful whether he will compete on Saturday, or even go with the team. In case he has not fully recovered, his absence will be keen-

COLLEGE ORCHESTRA TO PRESENT RECITAL

Other Musical Groups to Participate in Public Concert in Mead Chapel Friday.

The Middlebury college orchestra of forty pieces will give its annual public concert in Mead Memorial chapel Friday evening, May 15, with Professor Alfred Larsen conducting. Recent rehearsals indicate one of the finest and most varied programs in recent years. Beside the orchestra selections from Beethoven, Wagner, German, Bizet, and Gounod are vocal, flute, organ and violin solos prepared by the choral club.

The complete program as announced today follows: "Egmont Overture", Beethoven; flute solo, "Vakse Charme", de Lorenzo, Winifred Webster; Introduction from Rienzi, Wagner; tenor solos, "Vale", Russell, "Joy", Cadman, Richard Fear; "Shepherds Dance", "Torch Dance from Henry VIII", German; organ solo, "Hymn of Praise", Benna Moe, Dorothy Johnson; "The Elder Blossoms Lightly Stirred", A. Kopylow, Finale for "The Gondolier", Arthur Sullivan, Middlebury college choral club, conductor Prof. L. J. Hathaway; violin solo, "Legende", Wieniawski, "Tango", Albeniz-Kreisler, Elizabeth Abell; "Adagietto", minuetto from "L'Arlesienne", Bizet, and marzurka from "Coppelia", orchestra; piano solo with organ accompaniment, "Kamennoi-Ostrow", Rubenstein, Cleone Ford; March et cortege from "La Reine de Saba", Gounod, orchestra.

Managers of Basketball and Hockey are Elected

Rollin E. Pratt '33, and George T. Siipola '33, were elected assistant managers of basketball and hockey, respectively, at an election held Tuesday, May 5. James L. Olson '32 and Kirkland Sloper '32, were automatically advanced to the managerships of the same sports.

Mr. Pratt is a letter man on the varsity cross-country team and is active in fraternity sports. He is also a cheer leader and varsity track man. Mr. Siipola played on the varsity football squad last fall and is also active in fraternity sports. Pratt and Siipola are both Alpha Sigma Phi.

ther batters failed to function. In the sixth, seventh, and eighth innings, two blue batsmen found themselves stranded on base at the end of the inning.

A double by Delvichio, Coane's base on balls, singles by Gale and Whiteside all mixed up with some complicated base running and a passed ball, resulted in three Cadet runners crossing the plate. Another Norwich run was scored in the fifth. Stufflebeam was walked, went to third on Stefaniak's error, and scored on Hartford's fly to Makela. The last two runs scored by the visitors came in the sixth, when singles by Coane and Eaton and a walk by Gale enabled Coane and Gale to cross the plate.

New Wig and Pen Officers are Elected at Playhouse

Elections of Wig and Pen officers for next year were held at a meeting Tuesday afternoon, May 12. William E. Dorn '32, was elected president, and Marion R. Jones '32, vice-president. Elizabeth E. Brown '32, and Gray N. Taylor '32, were chosen secretary and treasurer respectively.

New committees were made up at this time to carry on the work of the society during the coming year.

Spanish Club Elects Officers for Coming Year

Avis Collins '32, was elected president at a meeting of the Spanish club held in the Geography room of Warner Science last evening. The other elections were John Garretson '34, vice-president; Margaret Scott '33, secretary, and Harold Young '32, treasurer.

The business meeting was followed by a showing of moving pictures of Havana, Cuba. Spanish music was the concluding feature of the meeting.

1932 JUNIOR WEEK IS GREAT SUCCESS

Another prominent event on the program of the week was the junior play, A. A. Milne's "The Romantic Age", presented at the college playhouse Wednesday and Saturday evenings. A large audience attended both performances, and the work of the cast was well received.

Thursday night a new feature of junior week activities was introduced, the interfraternity variety show, given at the gymnasium. Basing their decision on originality, production, management, and finished acting, the judges awarded cups to Delta Upsilon and Delta Kappa Epsilon for first and second places respectively, and honorable mention went to Beta Kappa. The winning production was the cleverly imagined dream of a sophomore studying for his bible exam. During the evening president Moody awarded the K. D. R. cup for interest in extra-curricular activities, character, scholarship, and loyalty to the ideals of Middlebury, to George E. Foote '31.

On Saturday morning several of the fraterities held post-promenade breakfasts at their chapter houses, and at 4:30 p. m. the junior tea was held at the Middlebury Inn. Forty couples were received by Charles Thrasher and Ellen Brightwell, president and vice-president of the junior class, and Eugene Thiele and Eleanor Benjamin, chairman and vice-chairman of junior week respectively. After the play, the interfraternity sing was held on the steps of Mead chapel at 11:30 p. m. This is a traditional event which is received with great interest by students and visitors. The winners will be announced shortly.

The sophomore men who turned out for the annual rope pull Friday noon were triumphantly dragged through the watered area of the hockey field by the men of '34.

The athletic program brought both victory and defeat to Middlebury. The baseball team lost the games played with Vermont 9-0, and with Norwich 6-3, although they won their first game of the state series with St. Michael's the previous Tuesday. Before the Vermont game the Waubanakee honorary society tapped the following men from the junior class: Reamer Kline, Walter Nelson, Edward Markowski, Kirkland Sloper, Eugene Thiele, and Charles Thrasher.

The Middlebury tennis team remained undefeated, by winning over St. Lawrence 8-1, New York Teachers' college 5-1, and Vermont 4-2. The track team, however, went down to defeat at the hands of Colby 72-63, but only by a short margin. During this meet the Colby record in the hammer throw was broken, Perkins throwing 148 feet, 10½ inches.

The last event on the junior week program was the Sunday vesper service in Mead chapel. Dr. Oscar E. Maurer of New Haven, Conn., was the speaker. The intersorority sing, a customary feature of the program, and scheduled to take place on Pearsons' steps at 7:00 p. m., was cancelled because of weather conditions.

years and was chairman of the junior week program committee. He is affiliated with Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Mr. Markowski has been outstanding as quarterback on the football team, having won freshman numerals and two varsity letters in that sport. This year he was placed on the all-Vermont eleven. He has played interfraternity sports and is now on the varsity baseball squad. He was secretary of the student curriculum committee and the undergraduate association his sophomore year, and is now a nominee for the position of president of the undergraduate association. He is a member of the "M" club and the Alchemists, and is vice president of Blue Key. He is affiliated with Delta Kappa Epsilon.

Mr. Nelson won the Hazeltine-Klevenow cup for athletic ability combined with excellence in scholarship, during his sophomore year. He won numerals in freshman football and captained the team; he has been center on the varsity football team the past two years, being all-state both seasons, and has won three varsity letters in hockey, and two in baseball. He is now captain of baseball and captain-elect of hockey. He was on the dean's list his sophomore year. He is a member of Blue Key and Delta Kappa Epsilon.

Mr. Sloper is captain and manager of varsity tennis, and manager of hockey, and has played interfriternity sports. He is assistant editor of the CAMPUS and editor-in-chief of the 1932 Kaleidoscope. He was fourth Parker prize speaker his freshman year, and is now a member of the dramatic club, Wig and Pen, English club, Pi Delta Epsilon, and the athletic council. He was on the junior week publicity committee, and is now a nominee for president of the undergraduate association. He is president of Blue Key, and a member of Alpha Sigma Phi.

Mr. Thiele won his numerals in freshman football, and a varsity letter in that sport this year. He has also participated in interfraternity sports. In his freshman year he was class treasurer, and was on the frosh frolic committee. As a sophomore he was class president, and a member of the soph hop committee, and also of the student council. He is a nominee for president of the undergraduate association, and is a member of the dramatic club and Blue Key. Mr. Thiele was chairman of 1932 junior week, and is a member of Delta Upsilon.

Mr. Thrasher is captain-elect of varsity football, and has been all-state end for the past two seasons. He won freshman football numerals, and two varsity letters in that sport. He has also taken part in interfraternity athletics. He won one of the $250 alumni awards, established for the first time this year, and given to the outstanding man in each of the four classes. He is a nominee for president of the undergraduate association. Mr. Thrasher was treasurer of his class while a sophomore and is now class president. He was on the dean's list his freshman and sophomore years, and is a member of Blue Key and Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity.

MIDDLEBURY NET TEAM VICTORIOUS

Flagg and Jennings again teamed up in the doubles to win easily.

Vermont came down with a team which has been working hard for some time but the blue and white came through fine despite its efforts of the previous days. Flagg took a wonderful match from the Catamount captain, Tupper, in the number one singles. The first set found the Vermont man forcing Flagg to 8-6, but the steady playing of the Middlebury freshman star soon wore down his opponent and the second match went to Flagg 6-4. Huntington played and lost a very close match in the number two position while Loomis, playing number three against Woodward of the Vermont netmen was forced to three sets, 5-7, 7-5, 6-4, before he could win. Volkmar played the number four singles and won handily from his man. Huntington and Sloper were rated number one doubles and went down to defeat by a close margin. Flagg and Jennings composed the other doubles team which won its match and the tourney for the Panther.

BETA KAPPA BEATS D. K. E. NINE 8-2

Winners Score Seven Runs in Second Frame to Take Early Lead.

Beta Kappa defeated Delta Kappa Epsilon 8-2 in the opening game of the interfraternity baseball series on Porter field yesterday afternoon. A second inning runaway which scored seven runs for Beta Kappa gave them an early lead.

Two-base hits by Kelly and Lilly in the second frame brought in four runs. Collyer on the mound for Beta Kappa, held the Dekes to five well scattered hits. Corliss, pitching for the Dekes, was wild and allowed eight hits and six walks.

Tuesday, May 19, the winners of the games on May 14 and May 15 will play and Wednesday, May 20, the winners of the games on May 13 and May 16 will compete in the semi-finals. The two teams which advance to the finals will play sometime after May 20. All games except the one Saturday, May 16, which begins at 2 p. m., will start promptly at 4 o'clock. The games this week and the game May 19 will be played on Porter field and the game May 20 will be played on the new field. Each contest will consist of seven innings and Coach Beck will be in charge.

ly felt by the squad, for in the meet with Colby, he took first place in the broad jump and the 100 yard dash, missed placing in the shotput and discus by inches, and was among the leaders in the 220 yard dash when he injured his leg. Certainly ability such as his will make a big difference in the points won by Middlebury, especially in as large a meet as the intercollegiates.

Gerald E. Thayer '31, is a good threat for the half mile event, and should tally points in his race, while Donald B. MacLean '33, may place in the hurdles, though both Northeastern and Springfield are especially strong in this department.
